A Community Conversation to Connect the Dots.

"Youth are in crisis."

The message is reverberating throughout the nation, and we are seeing the impacts here at home.

A community call to action is necessary, but we cannot change what we do not acknowledge.

Join us for a community conversation to connect the dots.

A panel of community leaders will engage in difficult and honest conversations about the issues facing our youth, families, and the community.

We will discuss existing gaps and identify solutions to help the community move forward together for the health and well-being of our children.
